Programme evaluation for transparency and recognition of skills and competences (TLQAA+)

The present Erasmus+ project “Programme evaluation for transparency and recognition of skills and competences” concerns the evaluation of higher education programmes and their relevance.

It covers a spread set of references, tools and procedures from internal review to external evaluation of academic programmes.

It aims also at developing and testing a national qualifications framework that will offer better readability of qualifications and promote dialogue among all stakeholders.

In the same context of crossing quality and relevance, the project will also deal with current topics such as non-traditional learning approaches or the links between QFs and quality from one side and the recognition from the other side.

Capacity will be built through the definition of standards and procedures and training experts who will conduct pilot evaluation of programmes.
